

E-WASTE CHALLENGE

Recycling made reality

In almost all households, they are hidden somewhere in drawers or gathering dust on cellar shelves: old mobile phones or other small electronic waste.

The challenge is for the group to organise a collection of these devices. They can either search for them at home or at neighbours' or friends' houses.

The devices are sorted, counted and then taken to a collection point for electronic waste. If the group considers it useful, some appliances can also be taken to a charitable repair service.

- Collective
- 2 days

The challenge is completed for the group when an average of at least 2 broken or no longer used electronic devices per participant is reached.
